Pen Portrait: I am one of the foundation governors appointed by the Diocese of York, to work within the governing body strengthening the link between church and school. I am a member of St. Hilda's Church, Egton and also St Margaret's Church in Aislaby, where we now live. My background is mainly business and finance. I have been married to Ray for fifty years; we have four married children and ten grandchildren. We moved to Egton in 1986 and our youngest daughter attended Egton School. I volunteered in school and six of our grandchildren have attended the School, two of them being there now. I became a governor in 2001 and have loved being part of the team and seeing the school flourish, especially in its links with the church.
